PERFECT FORM. Miss Louise Culbertson, obviously an attraction in the YMCA varsity swimming team, pulls out of a jackknife during a practice session recently. Warren School Board Reelects Keller

At the re-organization meeting of the Warren Borough School Board, under the leadership of Charles Frantz, president pro tem, Melvin Keller was reelected president and Ralph E. Brasington was named again as vice president. Howard Lauffenberger was reelected to a five year term as secretary of the borough authority (which supervised the Jefferson school construction) and Cecil Winans was reselected as chairman of the area authority (which is supervising the Beaty addition).

Cafeteria expenses of $6,579.09 for food and $1,675.14 for services were approved.

COUNTY NEWS in brief . . .

Attorneys For Norman Moon, Samuel D. Braemer of Connells-ville and Thomas A. Waggoner, Jr. of Uniontown, presented legal arguments and filed a brief objecting to recent court actions at the Warren County court house, Thurs- day, December 2. Judge Alexander C. Flick, upon request of the de- fense attorneys, forwarded a copy of the brief to Deputy Attorney General David S. Kohn and allowed the prosecution two weeks to file its brief.

Mr. Braemer contended that the court acted arbitrarily in not ac- cepting the findings of the sanity commission. He argued that the questions put to the commission were improperly asked and that the Public Health Act of 1951 was improperly interpreted.

The questions asked the commis- sion which the defense attorney attacked concerned the defendant being sufficiently sane to know that what he had done was wrong. The commission also was asked if Moon realized that he had been found guilty in the first degree, and was he sane enough to com- prehend that if he was executed it was because of the findings of the jury. All of these questions were improperly asked, claimed Brae- mer.

A Reckless Driving Charge was preferred by borough police against Norman E. Maney, 670 Beech st., following a one-car accident at 3:30 a. m. on Sunday, December 5. Maney, driving on a learner's per- mit, in the company of Richard and Nancy Sampson, 30 Plum st., veered across Pennsylvania ave. after passing the South st. inter- section as he was traveling West, left the road and struck a steel guy line anchor pole. All three passengers of the car were injured and the 1950 Studebaker was com- pletely destroyed.

Damages Of $450 resulted when a car being operated by Samuel J. Andolora, 15 Barreh ave., James- town, N. Y., traveling west on Fourth ave., struck a car operated by Katherine Carlson, 703 Cone- wango ave., at 4:30 p. m., Sunday, December 5. The Carlson vehicle had entered the intersection from Liberty st.

Two Cars Were Damaged at 11:20 a. m., Sunday, December 5, in an accident which ocured on Market st. Dorothy Stewart, 603 Henry st., was traveling south when she struck a car operated by Emmett Morrison, 109 Lookout st., on the left rear fender causing damages to both cars estimated at $225.

Three Excellent Films, "The Warning Shadow", "From One Cell", and "Living Insurance", have been recently received by the Warren County Cancer Society and are available for organizations wishing to arrange showings. Pres- ident Dr. John E. Thompson an- nounced the appointments of S. Knox Harper, Warren, and Don Abraham, Youngsville, as co-chair- men for the 1955 cancer crusade. "What Can You Do With These?" Miss Ellen Thoreson, third grade teacher in Jefferson school, was asked when she was presented with a large collection of pictures last January. "Plenty", she an- swered - and plenty, she did!

A Ginn and Company trade paper, Elementary School Notes, which is circulated throughout the United States by the well-known school text-book publishers, will publish soon an article by Miss Thoreson on a new method of teaching reading fundamentals, which she originated.

After mounting the pictures, the teacher began making up stories for language lessons, using one or more of the pictures to illustrate her ideas. Soon the pupils in her room started telling tales about each card with Miss Thoreson making sure that new vocabulary was introduced. The result of Miss Thoreson's experiment was an en- riched program in the teaching of reading skills as the pictures stim- ulated more original stories than could be contained in one book.

Why Shoot Only Bucks?

Larry Stotz, United States Forest district ranger, writes an occasional column which is released under the heading, Your Forest Ranger. In the column received this week, Mr. Stotz so well expresses our opinion concerning the ridiculous practice of limiting deer hunting to the buck population, that we are going to publish it under our Outdoors department.

By Larry Stotz

In a certain hotel which I used to frequent in Santa Fe, New Mexico, there was a curious hunting trophy, mounted on the wall, which always appealed to me, but which created consternation in any one who saw it for the first time.

It was the mounted head of a long-eared western jack rabbit, with the tiny antlers of an exotic species of dwarf deer so cleverly attached to the top of the rabbit's head, between the ears, that it appeared to be a natural phenomenon, and was for me the first and last antlered jackrabbit of my experience. And yet I couldn't help but think that perhaps if male rabbits grew antlers naturally a rabbit buck law would be in the books, and the shooting of antlerless rabbits would be considered just as unsportsmanlike as some consider the legalized shooting of female deer.

Or if the male black bear grew conspicuous tusks like the extinct sabre toothed tiger undoubtedly only bears with tusks would be considered legal game, and any efforts to legalize the shooting of female bear would meet with considerable resistance on the grounds that to shoot females would be unsportsmanlike, or to do so would wipe out the bear population. But still the old prejudice against the legalized shooting of antlerless deer persists here in Pennsylvania.

Granted that many hunters are more interested in a trophy than they are in the venison, when they hunt deer, it is also true that a great many hunters are not particularly interested in a trophy, but find just as much sport in hunting a doe as a buck, and once the venison is on the table find the meat equal to if not superior to that of a buck.

If the trophy hunter objects to a hunter's choice deer season, on the grounds that hunting female deer is unsportsmanlike, and will reduce the herd too drastically he is being inconsistent in his attitude for often the same hunter will have been out before the deer season looking for a bear of either sex to shoot, and he will have no compunctions about shooting a female bear. Since a hunter's choice bear season has been in effect for many years, with an ever increasing number of bear hunters taking to the field, and yet the bear population seems to remain relatively stable it would seem logical that the fleet footed deer could also take care of itself, regardless of sex, under a hunter's choice season.

The trophy hunter, who is only interested in a buck with a huge rack, faces pretty discouraging numerical odds against his ever getting a shot at his "dream buck", and if he gets a buck at all he may have to be satisfied here on the Allegheny National Forest with a buck with miniature antlers such as those mounted on the western jack rabbits head in a Santa Fe hotel.

The best remedy for this unpleasant situation which the trophy hunter now finds himself confronted with on the Allegheny National Forest is to enthusiastically support a "hunter's choice" or "one deer" type of deer season. He will find that there will be less competition for that prize "dream buck" that has found sufficient quality food to grow a big rack, because many hunters will be satisfied with a spike buck or a doe. Then as herd and its range is brought into balance, more and more bucks will find sufficient food to insure normal antler development, and these bucks will be bigger and heavier. If, under a hunter's choice season the trophy hunter is unable to shoot a buck, and finally decides to hunt antlerless deer he will find the female deer just as lusive as the male, and just as much sport to hunt.

In 1951 West Virginia put into effect a hunter's choice deer season, and the results of this forward step in enlightened deer management are interesting. In 1953 West Virginia deer hunters killed nearly as many antlered bucks as they ever killed during any single buck season in the State. In addition, they harvested 14,000 antlerless deer.

The West Virginia trophy hunter now finds that his chance of killing an antlered buck is actually increased in many areas since the hunter's choice season was adopted, because not all of the hunting pressure is on bucks now that all deer are legal.

Only one year after the hunter's choice season was put into effect the average weight of fawns killed in one county increased 9 pounds due to the increased food supply available to the reduced deer population. Undoubtedly, as further herd balancing is effected the average weight increase in deer harvested by hunters, during hunter's choice seasons, will be considerably increased.

During the entire 20 year period from 1930 through 1950, when only bucks were legal to hunt in West Virginia, hunters killed only 39,054 deer. During the last three hunter's choice seasons, hunters have killed 58,935 deer.

Although West Virginia has the hunter's choice deer season, which assures the hunter larger animals and better trophies without endangering the herd, the deer herd is still not being adequately harvested. To those few who still fear that a hunter's choice deer season in Pennsylvania would wipe out the herd it might seem strange that in West Virginia, after three years of such hunting, the big management problem still centers around an inadequate harvest of the deer. This is due to poor hunter distribution which results in too many hunters in some areas, and too few in other areas.

Hunter distribution is a universal problem, wherever deer hunters take to the woods, and here on the Allegheny National Forest it is a serious problem despite relatively flat topography, an adequate road system, and miles of pipeline and power line rights-of-way to hike over.

Until hunters are willing to actually get out and hunt a considerable distance back from the roads even a hunter's choice deer season in Pennsylvania would not entirely solve the pressing deer problem on the Allegheny Plateau, but it would for the first time, provide a type of deer season which would permit adequate harvests, and it would make 100 per cent of the deer population on the Allegheny National Forest legal to hunt instead of the distressingly small percentage of the population that is legally huntable under an archaic buck law.

ALL SET! LET'S GO! Cheerleaders representing the area schools lined up as they would in an effort to encourage their teams to victory. Although the wording of cheers seemed very similar, the motions showed a great amount of originality. Nearly seventy girls and their sponsors gathered Saturday afternoon at Youngsville high school to exchange ideas and to promote better cooperation among schols. The pulchritude displayed in the accompanying picture typifies the galaxy. The girls are (left to right) Louise Barton, Youngsville, Helen Spence, Pleasantville, Nelda Norbeck, Northern Area, Prudy Ritchie, Sheffield, Kay Ellis, East Forest, Clare Erickson, Warren, Nancy Balling Edinboro, and Mary Jane Andrews, West Forest.

SOMETHING TO CHEER ABOUT. The Cheerleaders' Conference which was held at Youngsville high school on Saturday afternoon was not merely a practice session. Besides exchanging cheers, songs and techniques, the girls participated in discussion groups on sportsmanship, rules and regulations, JV squads, etc. Cheerleaders from Edinboro State Teachers College encouraged the girls to greater efforts by sharing their coed experiences.

Joanne Taft, East Forest; Marilyn Waddell, Pleasantville; Patti Crippen, Youngsville, leader; Ruth Chima, Edinboro; Sally Nelson, Warren; Judy Ritchie, Sheffield; Donna Harp, East Forest; Jane Pickens, West Forest; and Jane Williams, West Forest.

STILL OPEN. Undaunted by snow and wintry blasts, the Williams Charcoal Stand is still preparing and serving the delicious hot dogs and hamburgers with hot peppers and all the other fixins. The West Side stand will remain open until after the holidays with drive-in service, Christmas trees and wreaths. Tom Williams and his son, Bud, (pictured charcoaling a hot dog) are the proprietors.

BEGINNERS. The guarantee of cheerleader squads in the future was aptly illustrated by the techniques already developed by JV cheerleader outfits. One session emphasized the importance of organizing a younger group which could be trained by the regular varsity pep girls.

By Bob Walsh

The Fight To Keep Communities Alive

Warren county is no exception in the current battle by many communities either to keep what they have or to regain their lost economic vitality. Warren county has communities which need a shot in the bread basket and some which need to keep aware of the ever-present threat to what they must remember is their source of a good living.

New England has seen what the migration of industries can mean to an area. The National Association of Wool Manufacturers says that 74 of the 132 woolen and worsted mills that shut down in a five year period were from New England. They cost 48,000 jobs. And since 1947 the New England textile employes have been reduced from 300,000 to 165,000.

We believe New England is a good example of what can happen, and does happen to many communities. The biggest fault of suffering states was their unawareness of the problem before them and their laxity about doing anything about it. The rest of us are forewarned. We should be prepared.

When many of these mass movements take place, the most glaring weakness is the lack of foresight on the part of management, labor, and the community. No one seems to know exactly what has hit him, and there is a lack of coordination either between groups or within the respective ranks.

This problem comes very close to home. At the present time the Labor Department has classified nine major areas as having a very substantial labor surplus. Two of these are in New England and four are in Pennsylvania!

In addition to these larger areas, there are 39 smaller ones with comparable unemployment. Many of these are in Pennsylvania, and we would not be surprised if in the list are one or two in this section.

New England is very typical of many communities. It is old and too conservative. It has failed to keep pace with the changing times, wearing out its outmoded plants and fighting to maintain the status quo when the only way to stay alive is to move with the times.

Though the Federal government has designated distressed areas and has attempted to help by directing contracts to those sections, the real help must come from the people affected. The most successful have been those communities where community development corporations have been formed with the full backing of most residents.

The experiences of these many distressed towns and cities, and the work that has been done, some successful and some ending in failures, offer a real break for others because they can study what has happened and can learn the easy way.

Much help can be obtained right here in Pennsylvania from the Bureau of Employment Security. It says that the experiences of a large number of Pennsylvania communities point to elements that make up an effective program. These include:

1. Setting up an active community-wide organization with local leadership.
2. Preparing a factual survey of a community's economic assets, manpower, raw material, sites, buildings, housing, transportation, power, heat, water, retail stores, markets, and many others.
3. Evaluating a community's specific needs for more jobs, better jobs, jobs for men, jobs for women, diversification of industry, and others.
4. Developing a positive plan of action.

In most communities this stock-taking has revealed the need of a building and much of the time and money has gone into such a construction. Warren county's harder hit areas may be spared this major hurdle.

Long experience in this business reveals that the best results have been achieved by communities with continuing organizations and long range plans, but with flexible programs to fit the changing times.

It also has been learned that such efforts work best when all have a real interest in the job to be done. One town in Pennsylvania has 6,000 men, women, and children paying five cents a week into the corporation. They also can succeed when a small group of businessmen gather together with enough confidence in the project to invest $500 or $1,000 a year in a five year plan, with all earnings plowed back into the development work. And some organize with a profit in mind. They often are very successful.

The main thing is to avoid the experience of one Pennsylvania town. An industrial commission was formed and got off to an enthusiastic start, but was so lacking in organization and system that, to quote one member, "The members knew what they wanted — diversified industry. . . . What they didn't know was how to go about getting it. So the plan lost impetus, and nearly died in talk."

That over-talking is the big weight some carry around. What we need is the will to accomplish something, a plan to follow, and the initiative and courage to carry it out. It won't come to us. Consequently we can't lost a thing by going after it.

It Is To Be Found

If you are skeptical about available industry, let us call to your attention the fact that ten new industries began operations in Pennsylvania last September, employing 948 persons, and with an annual payroll of two and a half million dollars! Eighteen other firms spent over eight million on expansion that will employ 1,135 additional people for three million dollars a year, 141 new commercial enterprises were started, employing 300 and valued at two and a half million. Democrats Close Ranks

By Doris Fleeson

NEW ORLEANS -- Democrats decided here that they were going Adlai Stevenson's way.

By an overwhelming vote, two men unknown to the party two years ago have insured the continuity of a national headquarters regime which takes its flavor, its philosophy and its standards of conduct from the 1952 Presidential candidate.

That regime will control the national convention machinery in 1956. While no doubt it will behave correctly, as a practical matter Stevenson is its candidate.

Here again, as in art, the substance preceded the form. The country looks to Stevenson not just as the titular but as the real leader of the Democratic party. Its new look is a Stevenson look.

It is clear now that National Chairman Mitchell was justifiably confident of this when he calmly picked as his successor the newly elected Paul Butler of Indiana. Mitchell, after two years of tireless travel up and down and across the country, had heard what the grass roots were murmuring.

When the votes were counted Butler had 70. The Truman-tinged Michael DiSalle had 18 and James Finnegan, candidate of the big city bosses so powerful under Roosevelt, had 16.

Butler was not a prestige candidate; he lacked glamour and he had no aura of victory, for Republicans rule his state. He was handicapped by the arm's-length dislike of Harry Truman, whose friends Butler had deposed in the Indiana organization.

But Butler had Mitchell and Mitchell had Stevenson. Mitchell put the Stevenson imprimatur on Butler in a masterful strategy based on Mitchell's intimate knowledge of Stevenson's character. Mitchell felt Stevenson would never openly interfere, which he didn't. In the resultant vacuum, the Butler-Mitchell forces remorselessly exploited the Mitchell-Stevenson intimacy.

In so proving that he understands the uses of power, Mitchell demonstrated that he will be around quite awhile.

He was helped of course by the fact that the old-timers didn't do their homework. Sam Rayburn, Jake Arvey and Dave Lawrence talked to each other. Mitchell and Butler had already talked to the delegates and were spreading the gospel of a free and open convention.

The opposing forces never came to the surface. The veterans, politicians to the bone, saw they were licked and joined the victors in a public embrace.

This was possible since the struggle never got personal. The defeated faction was jockeying for power in the accepted way. Some, including Rayburn, honestly thought Butler inadequate. All accept Stevenson as the party leader, at least at present.

Stevenson is concerned by only one thing, which is that Truman may feel rebuffed. Arvey & Co. made great use of this argument in trying to stop Butler.

Truman actually is taking it in stride. No mean politician himself, he suspects that his coolness toward Butler was used to woo the South. He rather thinks it should never have been made public. But, as ever, his motto is that if you can't take the heat get out of the kitchen. He is prepared to cooperate with the winners and promote party unity.

Butler did get all but two of the South's votes. Maybe Truman's opposition helped there, but it is also a victory for the tireless efforts of Mitchell and Stevenson to close ranks for 1956.

Drama TV Radio Music Reading Hobbies

Roving Mike

One of the most popular television programs of the day is Person to Person, with Edward R. Murrow doing the remote interviewing of well known people who are seen wandering about their homes while they discuss their work and hobbies. The subjects are not talking into a microphone as we think of them, and no wires seem to impede their progress from room to room and up and down stairs.

We never have discussed this trick because we assumed most people had read about it, but when we heard two experienced radio men puzzling it out on the air, and one of them giving the wrong answer, we decided many might be interested.

The talking is done into a new kind of microphone which was developed by the Person to Person staff, at a cost of about $5,000 each. It is small and unobtrusive, requires no wires, and does a pick-up job without being held directly in front of the mouth.

Television is developing many situations which require new ideas to make programs possible. And technical development is moving along so rapidly to meet the needs that even those in the trade find it difficult to keep up.

This is not a criticism of anyone, but a fact, a fact that applies to all trades and professions. It would be impossible to employ a printer in Warren who could do the work required to publish the Observer. We are moving so rapidly with new methods that we must train our own men, and many machines have been developed for the first time to meet our requirements and soon will be on the market for general sale.

It is a fast-moving, fascinating age...so rapidly progressive that our sociological and spiritual advancement may dangerously lag behind and we may reach a point where all forward progress will be stopped by mis-use of our scientific knowledge.

Paintings To New York

Six oil paintings and two water colors, done by Maritza Morgan, wife of Dr. Norman Morgan, of North Warren, will be shown in New York City this month. They will be seen in Krassner's, at 83rd and Madison. It may be a one-way trip for some of the well known painter's works, because they will be for sale.

Money For New Play Facilities

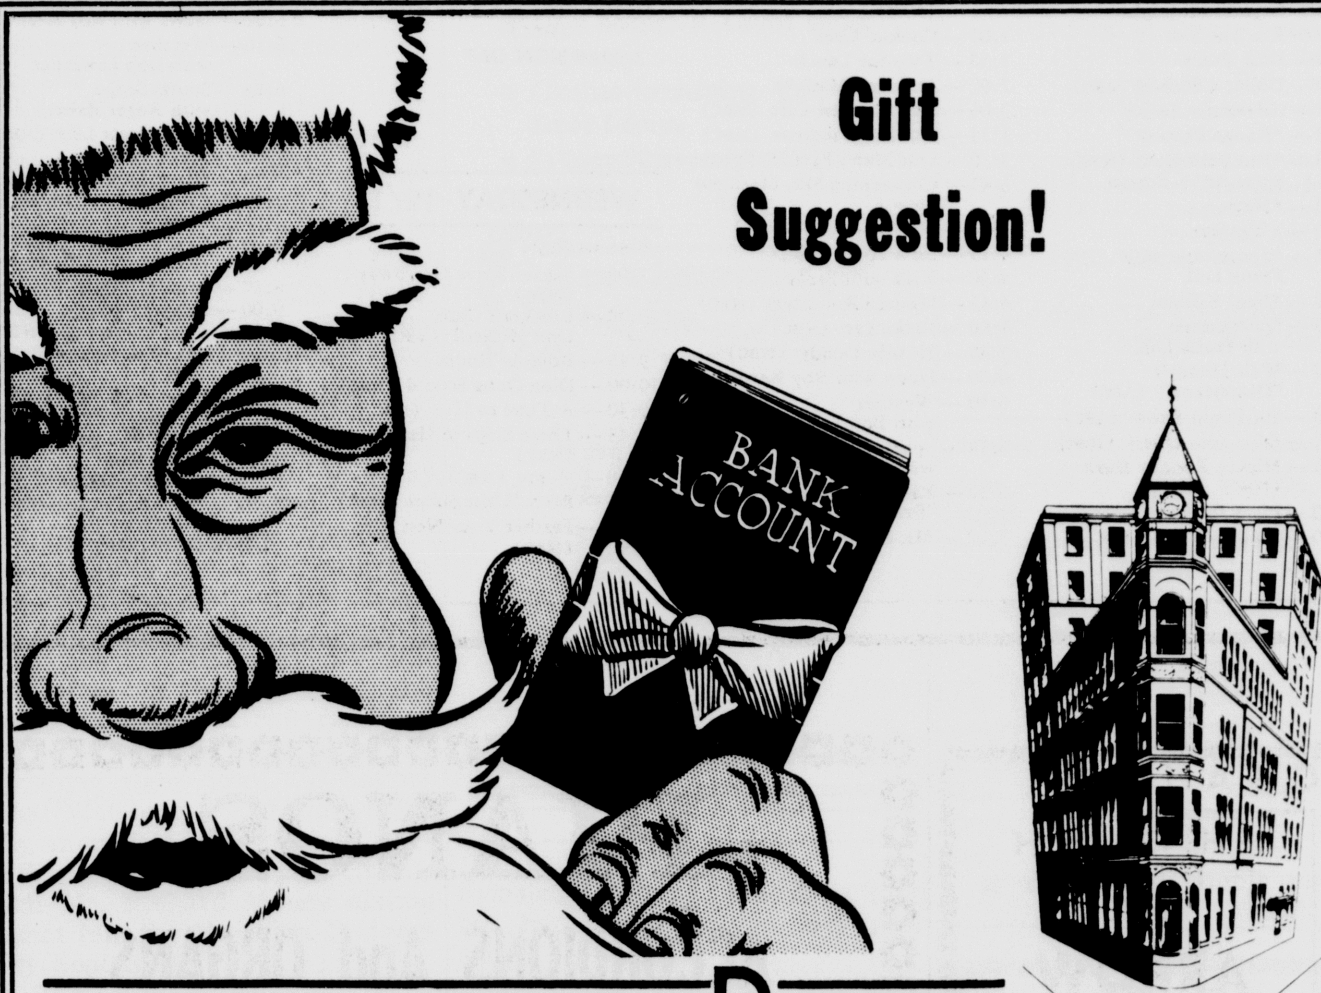

An incomplete report reveals that nearly nineteen million dollars are to be spent for a variety of recreational facilities, such as swimming pools, play grounds, park buildings, and other requirements, as the result of the votes cast in many American cities during the last election. Some of these decisions were made at special elections but all were approved in 1954.

Looking over the long list we find Towanda, Pennsylvania, is floating a $30,000 bond issue for two community centers. Monaca has approved a $130,000 bond issue for a swimming pool and the pool site. Wilmington voted $215,000 for general recreation developments.

Some are dealing in millage instead of flat sums. Mill Creek, Ohio, voted .4 mill for capital improvements in recreation. Chillicothe, Ohio voted .3 mill as a operating levy. Boardman Township, Ohio, voted a .5 mill levy for parks. El Cerrito, California, voted a ten cent levy to expand park and recreation services. Sunnyvale, California, voted in favor of a special tax levy for a $300,000 swimming pool.

Please note that these are not actions by governing bodies, alone. These and many others on the list, are decisions by the residents. They wanted more facilities and voted to pay for them.

time, though. Didn't quite dare, I guess. And the final deathbed reconciliation with Camille coughing out her life in Armand's arms. (Overhead shot, of course.)

* * * Ah, romance! Romance! Carries me back to my youth in Vienna when we'd be helling around night after night with the Hapsburgs. The waltzes, the champagne suppers, the hangovers - where were we?

It was just a couple years ago that TV drama had a sort of gutter realism, a preoccupation with the tenements and the back alleys and the subways. Now the motion picture people are doing things like "Waterfront" and television has discovered Alexander Dumas. Ah, well, it's just a phase, I expect. Dumas is just something every new art form has to get out of its system. I'm even optimistic enough to think that we'll get the directors out of the chandeliers eventually and back to street level.

The practice of exchanging Christmas cards has become big business, which suggests that the average participant spends a fairly large sum for this medium of greetings. After spending a good figure for adequate cards, many will start counting pennies in the mailing department, and will send their cards, flap open, for two cents apiece.

This is legal, if all requirements are met. The card must be no less than four inches and no more than twelve inches long, and no less than 2 3/4 inches and no more than nine inches wide. And there must not be any writing on the card other than the usual standard greeting.

For an additional cent you can assure the delivery of all the cards, avoiding the embarrassment of a single undelivered greeting. One such missed card can be worth the entire cost of the additional cent.

By mailing the cards first class for three cents apiece, you can include a note if you want, and more important, if your writing is not legible in a few cases, or is incorrect, or incomplete, a return address in the corner or on the back flap will either forward the card or bring it back to you for remailing.

Most of the people in the smaller communities are well aware of the proper address in their neighborhood, but the Warren rural sections may not be familiar even to residents of that community. To assure delivery of your cards and presents, here is the official list as released by the post office.

Rural Route No. 1: Pleasant Township to end of concrete only (RD No. 3 beyond); Jackson Street Extension; East Fifth Street Extension; Conewango Avenue Extension; Cobham Park Road to Smith's Corners; and Hemlock St. beyond borough line to Hemlock.

Rural Route No. 2: Venturetown - on main highway only (Follett Run on RD No. 3;) Warren-Jamestown Road to Lovers Lane; Daugherty Run Road; Jackson Run Road, Miller Hill, Dutch Hill, and Scranton Hollow.

Rural Route No. 3: Star Brick, Grunderville, and Pleasant Township beyond concrete (to Quest's); Yankee Bush and Follett Run Roads.

Warren-Corydon Star Route: Kinzua Road only (Rogertown and Stoneham are on Clarendon RD).

Patrons are also reminded that North Warren, Clarendon, etc. are OUT OF TOWN and cards so addressed should NOT be included in your "local" bundle. Also, please remember that there are no such post office addresses as Venture town, Yankee Bush, Star Brick, Rogertown, Stoneham, etc. In other words, be sure to have the RIGHT MAILING ADDRESS on every card. The telephone directory addresses are not necessarily correct for mailing.

And don't forget the Good Buy! Another cent on your Christmas card envelope to assure its delivery.

good knife as a Christmas present, or if you want one that will hold up under the rigorous beating of everyday kitchen life, pick one with a blade that extends the full length of the handle. Blades that are inserted into a handle a few inches are not apt to stay that way very long.

It is best to buy one that is riveted, with three of them if the steel goes away back to the rear of the handle. And if it is a blade that goes less than the full way, it will do quite well if it has at least two rivets running through the handle.

Another little wrinkle to think about these days is the problem of cleaning various kitchen utensils in an automatic washer. Though some wooden handles have a special finish to resist moisture, it is safer to buy a hard rubber handle.

If you want to add a pleasant taste to your roast, try curry powder, says Marjorie J. Wromack, Penn State extension nutritionist. About 45 minutes before the meat is done, mix one tablespoon of curry powder, one teaspoon of sugar and one-half cup of water. Stir this mixture into the liquids around the roast. Miss Wormack does not say what curry powder is, but in case you are interested it is a condiment imported from India.

Cheap Fur Trim Discouraged

If you are considering a coat with fur trim, remember that the greatest wear occurs on the sleeve edges, and similar exposed parts. Though fur increases the cost about a third, cheap fur in these vulnerable spots may greatly reduce the life of your coat. Buy good fur trim or be content with a high-grade all-cloth suit or coat.

Dragons Lose Two

Kane couldn't miss, Warren couldn't hit, and the score read 68 for the Wolves, 45 for the Dragons. The first quarter saw the Kane boys maintaining a shooting pace that is not natural for any team in the nation. Meanwhile, Warren insisted on throwing the ball away. And a ball thrown away meant two points for the visitors, every one of whom was hitting from any position. The quarter ended, 22 to 5.

From there on Warren was outscored only 46 to 40, but the damage was done. Schafer was the big Dragon with 15. Jim Smart had 15 for the Wolves.

The seconds, after making it a game up to the last few minutes, suddenly caved in and Kane won that one, too, 40 to 31.

Then Jamestown came to town. Warren looked better, some of the hopefuls suddenly came to life and it was a bitter one all the way, the Hilltoppers finally going home with a 55 to 53 victory. Jeff Homan began to live up to his pre-season reputation, playing a fine floor game and scoring 17 points. Schafer had 14 and Massa moved in with 13. Winterburn was as warm as he sounds for Jamestown, getting 23 points, most of them in the first half.

The seconds lost another close one, 41 to 39.

Now that the Dragons have found the range they may look a little smoother against Sheffield this Friday, on Beaty floor. And against Bradford next Tuesday in the same place.

Y League Opens

The Warren YMCA basketball league opened last week with most of the Warren county area fairly well represented. The Style Shop, a Warren team, looks like the power, opening with a 72 to 56 licking of the Rockets. H. Berdine with 18 points was the big man for the Stylists who have too many guns. White topped the Rockets and both teams with 22.

The Duquesne team has two victories already, taking the Youngsville-Tidioute boys, 75 to 56, and the Sugar Grove-Lander crew, 50 to 37. Irvine with 28 and Kulka with 27 led the Dukes. Wood with 15 led the losing Y-T quint, and Marsh with 14 led the Grovers.

In the other game played, the Y-T combination lost a close one to the Rockets, 59 to 57. Schwab got 27 for the losers, Weidert collected 14 for the Rocks.

Tonight they have at it again, the Rockets meet the Sugar Grovers, at seven, and the Style Shop will be after its second victory, with the Youngsville and Tidioute boys as its meat. Monday will see the Rockets playing the Dukes, and Sugar Grove meeting the Style Shop.

Area Scores

Reviewing a bit and bringing them up to date, we find Warren has taken Southwestern, 42 to 41, and has lost to Kane, 68 to 45, and to Jamestown, 55 to 53.

Youngsville lost to Southwestern, 55 to 43. Sheffield lost to Smethport, 53 to 63. Tidioute has lost to powerful Cranberry, 70 to 46, and to Clarion, 68 to 54. It then beat Spartansburg, 41 to 24.

West Forest has lost two, New Bethlehem, 63 to 60, and North Clarion, 56 to 36. Dick Finley's East Forest has beaten Ridgway St. Leo, 59 to 46, and North Clarion, 52 to 41. It lost to Johnsonburg, 53 to 29.

Corry lost to Erie Tech, 54 to 44, but took Millcreek, 71 to 53. Oil City lost to Grove City, 59 to 37. Franklin was beaten by Cranberry, 66 to 50, and by Mercer, 67 to 45.

Meadville topped Greenville, 57 to 45, and lost to New Castle, 61 to 42. Bradford lost to Erie Vincent, 71 to 59. Vincent has taken Jamestown and Kanty Prep.

Farrell and Sharon look like big time. Sharon has licked Youngstown East and Struthers. Farrell has taken Akron North and Youngstown South by big margins.

Sheffield should not feel bad about its opening loss. Smethport looks like tough going. It also has beaten Bradford St. Bernard, 57 to 37, and Emporium, 50 to 35. A little team to watch is Pleasantville, victor over Spartansburg, 81 to 20, and over Townville, 45 to 40.

Y Swimmers Look Good

With a big 41 to 17 victory over Oil City tucked under its water wings, the Warren Y varsity swimming team will take on a tough Jamestown combination in that city this coming Saturday. The prep team also will make the trip and has a 41 to 25 victory over the Oilers on its record.

Winning first places for Warren at Oil City were Dinsmoor, Hendrickson, Clicquennoi, Hagen, Burke, Hines, and three relay teams, with Barr, Burke and Hagen on one, Clicquennoi, Main, and Dinsmoor on another, and Louise Culbertson, Iseman, Scalise, and Hendrickson on the third.

The next home meet will be with the Erie Y, on December 18.

College Basketball comes to the TV screen this Saturday. The opener will see Notre Dame against Indiana, on Channel 4, at three o'clock.

Despite Defense Advantages of the zone we still wonder why a team should ignore a man who is running wild? Hunting Reports

Though the official kill has not been added up, the Pa. Game Commission believes the overall count of small game will be as good as 1953. Down will be the squirrel and grouse total. Unofficially about 400 bears were shot, well above 1953. The first day of deer hunting saw much action but it has slackened off. Maybe the final Saturday will make up the difference.

Ike's Situation Similar To Hoover's

By Thomas L. Stokes

WASHINGTON -- If we go back to the last Republican Administration before this one -- that of Herbert Hoover a quarter of a century ago which ended March 1, 1933 -- we can find an interesting parallel with today. It relates both to a split Republican party and a Senate party leader at cross-purposes with the President as is Senator William F. Knowland of California today.

What President Hoover did then about his Senate party relations may offer a clue to the outcome of President Eisenhower's dilemma.

Though there is no similarity in personality and method of operation between Bill Knowland and the Senate Republican leader of the Hoover era -- James E. Watson of Indiana -- the drama of conflict, both within the party and between Senate and White House, is comparable in significant aspects.

"Jim" Watson was a GOP Old Guard stalwart and stand-patter and a flamboyant and clever politician of the old school. He wanted to be President, too. He was a candidate for the nomination before the 1928 Kansas City convention that nominated Herbert Hoover, who was the candidate of the "liberal" elements of the Republican party, just as was General Eisenhower in 1952 when he defeated the late Senator Taft, candidate of the conservative wing of the party. It might be interjected here that Senator Knowland was a supporter of Senator Taft.

When Senator Watson had to be content with the post of party leader in the Senate, after thwarting of his Presidential ambitions, it was generally recognized that his career, so far as going higher was concerned, was behind him, though he lived many years thereafter and died not long ago. Senator Knowland, who is only 46, regards his career as still ahead of him, meaning he looks higher up.

There are other striking contrasts. Where Senator Knowland is open and forthright in his opposition to the President on some aspects of foreign policy, telling the whole world about it, Jim Watson was devious and skilfully maneuvered his Old Guard followers in the Senate to hamstringing President Hoover. Privately the Indiana Senator was very frank, and cynically so, about his lack of accord with the party leader in the White House and with the policies which the "liberals" had expected Mr. Hoover to espouse.

The split in the party revealed itself early in the Hoover Administration when the President called a special session of Congress soon after he became President. That was in fulfillment of a promise made late in the campaign to Senator William E. Borah (R., Idaho), a leader in the Western farm bloc, for a special session to revise tariff rates affecting agriculture.

But industrial interests swarmed in to exploit this opening and Congress got out of hand in a wild scramble to boost industrial rates also. Jim Watson was thoroughly in favor of that and his Old Guard, high tariff wing of the party rallied against the Hoover element, outnumbered in Congress then as the Eisenhower supporters are today. Unable to deal dependably with Jim Watson, President Hoover looked elsewhere for the protection of his interests in the Senate. He began to rely upon the assistant Republican leader, Senator Charles R. McNary of Oregon, a school-mate at Stanford University, and a little band which became known as the "young Turks." They included Senators Vandenberg (Mich.), Henry J. Allen (Kans.) and Simeon Fess (Ohio), among others.

The Old Guard, high tariff crowd won out despite the efforts of a coalition of Democrats and progressive Republicans, the latter led by Senator Borah. Out of it the nation and the world got the notorious Smoot-Hawley Tariff Bill which President Hoover signed into law reluctantly and over the protests of the "liberals," political and economic, who had supported his nomination but thereafter lost confidence in him.

For the tariff issue, which had its impact in foreign relations, we have today the broader and more complicated collection of foreign policy issues over which the Republican party is split. Bill Knowland has joined the anti-Administration element which compares with those who lined up with Jim Watson against Herbert Hoover in that other era.

Will President Eisenhower, like Mr. Hoover, search out someone else in his party in the Senate with whom to deal? If so, who? The amateur slate makers who dabble in that sort of thing are finding the choice is rather narrow. They list Senators Carlson (Kans.), Ives (N.Y.), Saltonstall (Mass.), Aiken (Vt.), among the possible prospects.

What we are watching seems to prove that the more things change, the more they remain the same, or history repeats itself, or perhaps:

"This is where we came in."

The Day I Become 21

"Dad said a lot of things to me that day.....about working hard and being ready to make the most of good breaks and the best of bad breaks. He told me I couldn't look into the future but I could be ready for it. And he pointed out the importance of having a planned insurance program.

"Dad would be proud to know that I carry adequate fire and extended coverage on our home and contents, auto liability and collision insurance, and other all-around protection."

How about you? Are you backing the things you value and those you love with adequate insurance protection? Why not call 558 or see

AsidesHis Slip Now Shows

Senator McCarthy is doing no more today than what he has been doing for several years. The style is the same but the targets are becoming more prominent.

This reckless tossing of accusations apparently disturbed too few people, including his cohorts in the private little club, known as the United States Senate, as long as he left the brothers alone. But when he attacked Senators.....my, and my, my!

Now he is taking on the President, for whom we have less sympathy than the defenseless private citizens who didn't ask for it and had no comeback. President Eisenhower asked for it by constantly playing along with McCarthy, patting him on the head during the campaign to gain votes and failing to oppose McCarthy attacks on members of his administrations.

Now he has the stage, as Governor Dewey long ago suggested he would have, when he proposed a show-down with McCarthy during the Presidential campaign. It now is up to the top to champion the many who have been denied the protections written into the Bill of Rights.

Unfortunately he didn't do this until placed on the spot himself. He now is not representing the abused. He is representing himself.

Perhaps the sub-head above should have read, "Their slips now show."

Budget Time Is Here

Budget time is here for most governing groups in Warren county. The figures for next year are being looked over and in the coming months the news will be released. Warren borough will be one of the first, and the residents of this community can expect the cost of government to go up again. Even without pay raises it looks as though Warren will need at least one mill of tax, a mill that may be gained in numerous ways.

Warren really needs more than a mill. You residents of the Fifth Ward should keep a very close watch on this one, because we doubt if there will be an appropriation made for playground land. If the Fifth Ward does not obtain land now, there soon will be none to buy in this fastest expanding residential area in the borough.

Fifth Warders should be speaking up right now if they want to be sure that land they thought council had decided to buy is actually to be purchased. We suspect there are councilmen who would like to let it slip quietly by, hoping the Big Fifth will not notice.

For Your Convenience

Those Warren post office windows now are open from 7:30 in the morning until 6:30 p. m., and this will last until December 21. The East Side sub-station will be open until 9 p. m., starting Friday and lasting until Christmas Eve.

And Don't Forget

Betts Machine Company
 A Unique Enterprise

The business leadership of Mr. Betts, son of the founder Louis J. Betts, and the engineering skill of Mr. DeFrees have combined to develop numerous designs of valves and accessories for petroleum tanks. When organized in 1901, the Betts Machine Co. was located adjacent to Struthers-Wells on Fourth ave. where they manufactured custom built, precision products requiring high pressure. In 1945 they moved to 1800 Pennsylvania ave. West, the present location, and occupied a building of five thousand and square feet. The Warren valves soon became their major product and because of certain advantages — lighter in weight, faster unloading, added safety, less maintenance, and flexible installation — an addition of fifteen thousand feet was added to the shop facilities a few years ago to produce in sufficient quantities to meet the demands.

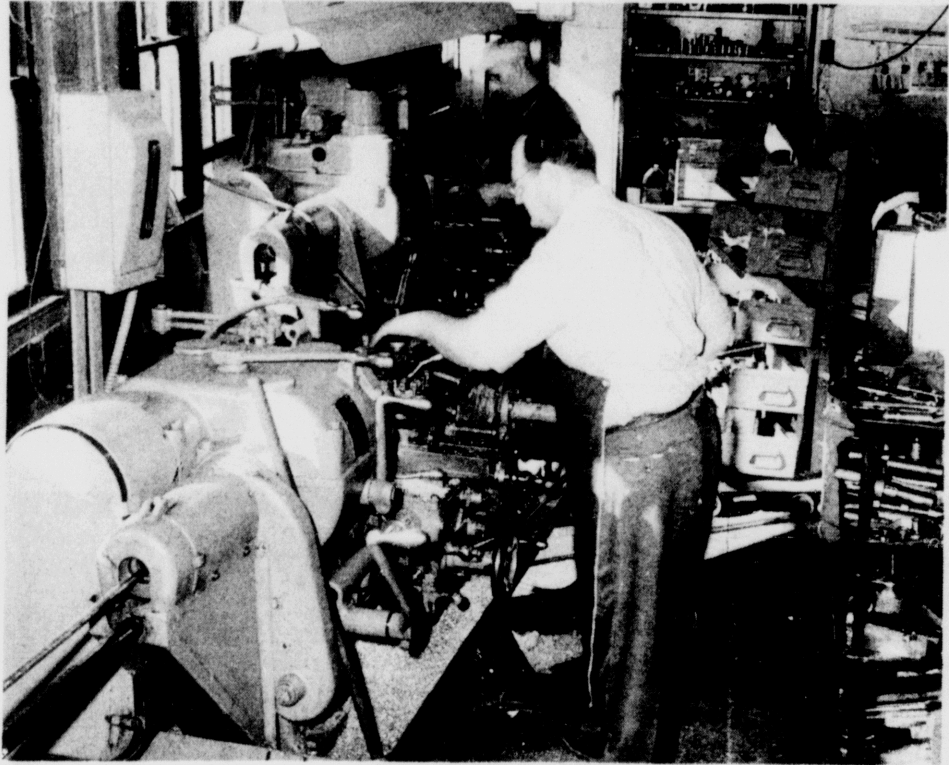

The third generation of Betts; Edward L., vice president; and Richard T., assistant treasurer, are now taking an active place in management of the concern. Other officers are Ralph Gay, treasurer; Karl Pierson, vice president; and C. J. Kauffman, secretary.

LEAK INSPECTION. Albert Dombeck is all set to submerge the manifold, open the valve to allow an air pressure of fifteen pounds, and then drop the welder's helmet to seal leaks that are revealed by bubbles reaching the water's surface.

A safety program which requires that all employees wear glasses was inaugurated six months ago and since that time no "lost time accidents" have occurred. Recently, Albert's eye was saved by glasses when twenty pounds air pressure blew out a plug which would have blinded him had the glasses not been in place. Four employees, selected every three months, under the supervision of a committee chairman, direct the program.

BRASS MACHINING. Harry McCulla (foreground) and Emmett Huck lean over their machines as they watch closely the pieces of brass they are cutting into valve stems.

A sharing system which distributes 25 percent of the profit semi-annually among the employees has developed a force of skilled men who are vitally interested in the success of the business. "One big happy family" best describes the management-employee relationship because of the profit sharing program.

READY TO GO. A shipment of manifolds is all set to go! Frank Siliano and Mike Stenberg drive the last few nails.

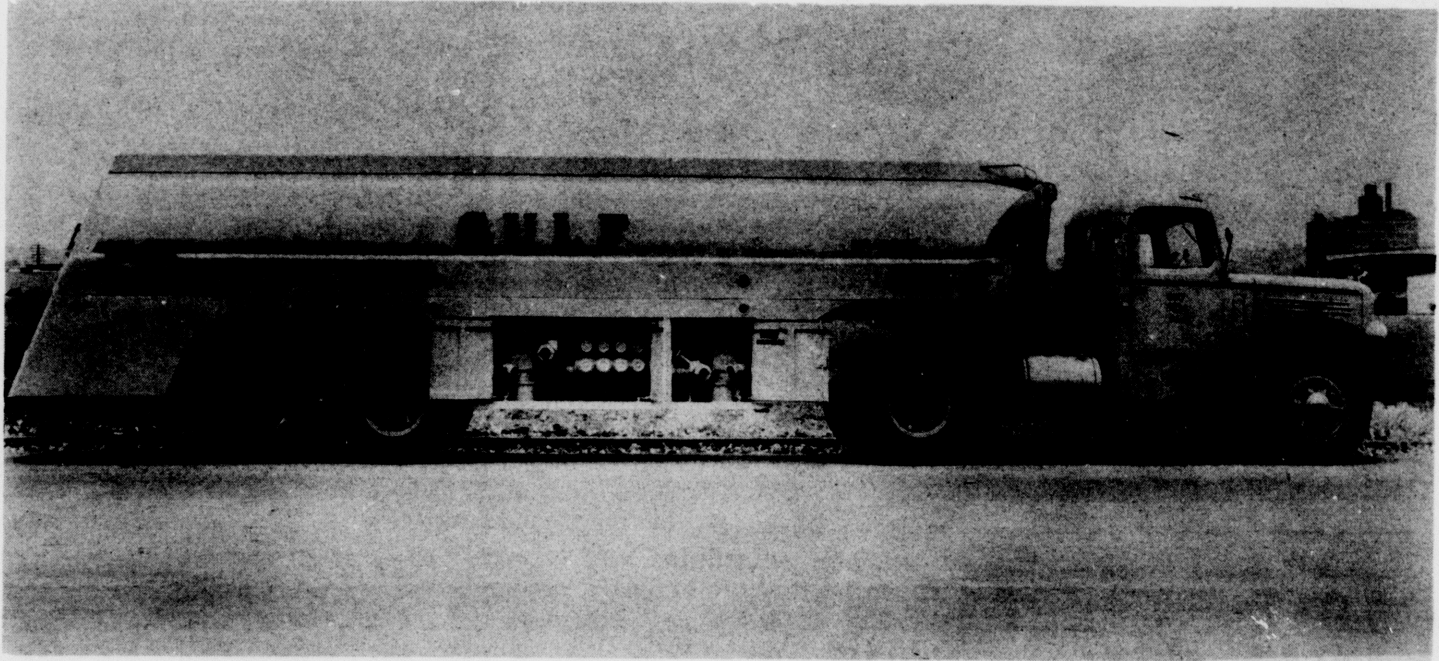

Each employee is encouraged to join the company-designed savings plan. Here is how it works — Each week the worker permits the company to withhold one dollar from his earnings which is matched by the company. The fund is held for an emergency. A committee of one from management and two from the shop is chosen to determine if the request for withdrawal really describes an emergency. Upon their approval, the employee is entitled to take out the required amount which has been credited to his account. Upon leaving the company's employ, the worker receives his total savings.

WELDING. Encased in a welder's outfit and protected from lethal fumes by an overhanging fan-propelled ventilator, Tom Moon-ey puts the finishing touches on a manifold assembly.

Each year the men and their families are guests of the company for a picnic and bowl in leagues sponsored by the organization. At Thanksgiving each employee is remembered with a fruit cake and the yule gift is a hefty turkey.

INSTALLED. The next time you see a gasoline truck filling the storage tanks in your favorite station, look closely as you may find a Betts manifold in operation. Each truck is built with several compartments and the manifold and valves makes it possible to unload one section at a time.

CLEANING A MANIFOLD. After the manifold has been assembled by the welder, the cleaning up operation is started. Here, Harry McCulla cleans off the welding scale in order that no leaks will be temporarily covered and be missed in the underwater inspection.

The company sponsors a Hot Stove League baseball team which has won the Warren County championships in 1953 and 1954.

BOWLING THIS WEEK

Some Big Ones

Pete Juliano shoved the wood around this week, posting 227, 213, 243 for 683 in the City league and 190, 227, 236 for 653 in the Industrial. He also had 248 and 634 in the Commercial. The rest of us can go home and dream.....

It wasn't quite that bad, as Nummy Wooster's 265 and 639 in the City loop will attest. Nummy's 265 and Pete's 683 were new season's highs for that circuit.

Forrie Nichols had 244, 235, and 646 in the Industrial. Louie Chimenti got a 612, and Al VerMilyea spilled 601.

Jim Rose was second in the Commercial with 608. Art Check led the Ex-Servicemen with 590, Dr. Seavy topped the Junior Industrial with 586, while the Juliano Market scored 959 and 2685 for a new season's record.

John Smith was found out of bed again with 564 in the Merchants league. Sam Gerardi shot 547 in the K of C American. George Coveney led the Sylvania with 522, and Bill Lucia the Shop league with 512.

Lady Filingers

Betty Gray led the week's efforts with 529 in the City league. Madge Kehm hit 213 and 520, Bernice Thomas, 518, Helen Peterson, 497, and Evelyn Felder, 496 in the same league.

Mary Check with 519 led the Major league. Red Walsh had 515, Vi Sterling, 509, and Rita Miley, 501. Jean Russell led Peg' league with 492, Janet Mellander topped the C loop with 471, and Bette Nichols led the Minor with 466.

Sven Forslund was the big man in Mixed league play with 580 on Friday night. Nell Elliott had 425 to lead the ladies in this league. Busty Pintagro led the Tuesday mixed action with 514. Fran Stein led the ladies with 386.

Damages Amounting To $6,000 resulted from a one-truck accident at 1:15 this morning. Frank Shaver, Clarendon, was driving a truck tractor with loaded semi-trailer which belonged to Berenfield Barrel Co., Clarendon. As he descended the decline at the approach to the Glade Run bridge at the outskirts of Warren, the brakes failed and he struck the bridge upright. Mr. Shaver was not injured.

JOVIAL PAIR. Santa Claus and Mrs. Frank Brindis smiled their welcome to those who entered the tea room of the McClintock bazaar which was held Thursday evening, December 2. Despite the unfavor-

PLEASURE IS WHERE YOU FIND IT. These two young fellows secluded themselves from the hurry and scurry of the McClintock bazaar by nestling up to the radiator behind the entrance door. Safe from the feet of prospective customers, they were engrossed in high adventures when interrupted by the photographer. Many found pleasure in Christmas shopping but these two bought their literature and "sat out" the balance of the evening.

STYLE SHOW. Anna Jane Hawkins, Vicky Myers, and Mrs. Gertrude Kaebnick examine the red lingerie which is being displayed by Mrs. E. R. Sanford. Mrs. Sanford was one of the models at the style show-luncheon-bazaar which was sponsored by the program committee of the YWCA with the cooperation of Betty Lee. Approximately 150 attended the two-hour program which lifted the lid on the 1955 spring creations.

TWO PIECE OUTFIT. Mrs. Cecilia Moran, wearing number 24, models a two-piece dress at the YWCA style show. Each model displayed a number which corresponded with the description of the garment in the program. The bedecked ladies walked among the tables in order to allow closer scrutiny of their garbs. In the picture, Miss Sara Jane Hartman, Mrs. Betty Thoma, and Mrs. Richard F. Bull pause during the luncheon to discuss the various fashions. The large (over 25 ft. high) Christmas tree was furnished by Mr. Thoma.

TIED WITH A RIBBON. Mrs. Jean Newbury, a model at the YWCA style show, resembles a Christmas gift — wrapped, tied with a ribbon, and positioned beneath the beautiful evergreen. Officially, the program stated she was wearing "Vanity Fair Original Nylon Tricot" which was furnished by Betty Lee.
